

HOW TO SCORE

Below is an example of a domestic junior score sheet that depicts the correct way to fill in this type of score sheet. Each boxed number represents the numbers below.

1. Team Manager or coach is to enter the number of the players. They must also print the name of the coach in the space provided.
2. The referee will sign players in before the commencement of the game. If a player is late, at a time-out or half-time the scorers must alert the referee to sign in the player that was a late. A player must be signed in before they are allowed to take the court.
3. 2 point field goal: count two down from the last basket. Write the number of the player that scored in the empty box and draw a dash across the other box. (The gaps between the dashes makes it easier to read.
4. 3 point field goal: same as it is for 2-pointers, just count down three spaces instead. Put a circles around the scores number, making it easier for 3-pointers to stand out later on.
5. Free-throws: put a dot and the scorer's number directly below the last points. Do this for each free throw that is made.
6. Fouls: Mark off a team foul each time someone on that team is called for a foul. Also mark off next to the player that committed the foul. If it is a personal foul you place a "P". If the fouls is a personal foul and the player that got fouled gets 1 free throw, you place a "P1" in the box next to the player. If the player that gets fouled receives 2 free throws, you place a "P2" in the box next to the player that committed the foul. If the player that get fouled received 3 free throws you place "p3" in the box. If a player receives a technical foul, "T1" is placed in the box next to the player that committed the foul. If a player receives an unsportsmanlike foul "U2" gets placed in the box next to that player.
7. Timeouts: Cross off one of the time-out boxes each time that team calls a timeout. Use the top row for the first half, the second row for the second half and the third row for any extra periods.
8. At the end of a period you write down how many points that team got for the period. At the end of the game you add the scores from both periods and write down the name of the winning team.
